Ellsworth Cemeteries

This index is for Ellsworth, N. H., cemeteries. It contains all the inscriptions we have found in that town and is indexed alphabetically, together with the name of the person, wife, son or daughter of, etc., if known, and the dates. Only years are given except in the case of children who died before age 1. Such a list destroys the information a researcher gets from the burial of persons on a family lot. For such information and for more exact dates, the reader is referred to the whole text in another volume, Campton, N. H. Cemetery Records by Bagley & Vacca.

The main cemetery in Ellsworth is on the road going from West Campton toward Stinson Lake, near the school house and chapel, on the same side of the road. Cemetery is in poor condition.

The Baptist Cemetery is on the same road. Go up the next hill and in the woods to the right, you will find this cemetery, near the site of the now-destroyed Baptist Church. Cemetery is in poor condition, and one grave was dug into by trophy seekers (now covered).

The Stinson Lake Cemetery is very difficult to find. The easiest way is to go around Stinson Lake on the east side. Pass Salam Estates and the road makes an abrupt turn left down the hill where it joins the Rumney-West Campton Road. The old road went straight ahead where it now goes left. Follow the bed of the old road and the cemetery is on a knob to the left of the old road. Apparently, there were once more stones and what are left are much broken and worn.

The Avery Cemetery is found by turning right at the school house. Go along that road and cross the bridge over the brook coming out of Ellsworth Pond. Cemetery is off to the left some yards beyond the last house on the left.

There is supposed to be another cemetery in Ellsworth at what was Buzzell's Mills, surrounded by a chain link fence. Hunters have reported it but Mr. Raymond and Mr. Little, and we have been unable to find it. No evidence as to how many burials or stones.

The late Haven Little of Rumney kindly took the authors to find these cemeteries. Without his help, finding the Stinson Lake Cemetery would have been improbable.

Burials are assumed to be in the main Ellsworth Cemetery. When they are in other cemeteries the name of the cemetery is placed after the entry.
